“SICK”
by Shel Silverstein

WARNING

Inside everybody’s nose
There lives a sharp-toothed snail.
So if you stick your finger in,
He may bite off your nail.
Stick it farther up inside,
And he may bite your ring off.
Stick it all the way, and he
May bite the whole darn thing off.

If I told my mother that I was sick if it was not, she would put a 100 layers of wool in me and would send me to sleep and rest on the bed all day, no TV or games. She appears with all these symptoms of various terrible diseases, such as Caxumba and measles, chickenpox and other things. It's a cute poem! It sounds exactly like the foolishness that the children try to pull. It made me laugh and definitely gave me some ideas. My mouth is wet, my throat is dry, I'm getting blind from my right eye, I'm sure my left leg is broken, my hip, when I move my chin, my navel is falling, my back is twisted, my ankle is twisted, my power is It rains, Children poor. She says she has measles and caxumba and purple swellings, some cutting eruptions and cuts, bundles the size of stones and sixteen catapores. She invents a few more to add to her arsenal, but the last part of the poem is where we see her imagination as she discovers some more symptoms. Thanks, My neck is hard, my voice is weak, I barely whisper when I speak. When my mother tells me that it is worked, I go out to play. She states that hip from her when she moves her chin and mentions that her navel is crumbling and that her apartment is worth it raining. The poem is written for children and can easily be related by them, as the scenario that the author uses is routine. She said: a e ceMan and I think my leg is fine. It can be a music or recited, which is not very common in poems. My 13-year-old daughter tried to get it. My kids tried, they remembered if they were sick they had to stay in bed all day, no television, without a phone, drinking a lot of water. My elbow is folded, my column is not straight, my temperature is one-o-eight. My tongue is filling my mouth, I think my hair sahnilag sahnilag siessezed ietnoc ue ,sardep omoc sednarg oEAt oEAs saladgAma sahnim .odniac And there's one more — that's seventeen years ago, and you don't think my face looks green? My breath is shrunk, I can't hear it, there's a hole in my ear. Very silly indeed! RIP Mr. Sheldon A. If they really had a cold, they would have given a nasal response. A singer's friend told an audience that when she and her brother tried to leave school, their mother would ask them to say "Plum Jam". Ae a- ASickAe a u field and mumps, a cut, a cut, and the purple colic. I have a handnail, and my heart... What? So I'd rather go to school! I liked this poem. We can go to school now. "She never did any of this again. What's that? This poem, however, made me laugh, and I particularly like the punch line at the end. This poem is 3. So, if I did that, I would still have to get back to school work. Your reluctance to go to the school has invaded her image and she shows no sign of slowing down until she has convinced everyone that she can't go to school. My leg's not cut My eyes are blue - it could be an instinctive dispute. I love this poem! I loved this poem. She used apologies about the ailments using her mother's or father's handwriting to say that she is ill and even helped to leave school. After feeling a little low and sorry for myself, this poem made me fall over laughing - which is a tannic, much better than a visit to the physician. Despite his many attributes, he made the most prominent splash as a songwriter and was nominated for both Grammy and Oscar nominations. Don't you say today? Just like a child, actually! Jo my children always that kind of thing! Then I correct them by saying I'm not mad. Also ©m helps parents to if the child is really sick or pretending. Thank you very much for your cooperation. She said her leg was broken, but then I said we'd have to take her to the doctor so they could cut off her leg. Highly entertaining and has a good rhythm too. GAcAdY..... I like this. I chose this poem for a school project. To continue enjoying our site, we ask you to confirm your identity as a human being. As for me, I tried to eat mud in the hope that I would also miss school. It is the conversation of a girl named Peggy Ann McKay with her parents that she is trying to convince not to send her to school. Thank you, Shel Silverstein. What do you say? Hi, I just want to share this beautiful poetry with my students. My teacher will love it. Silverstein, king of silly poems! It makes me think of someone I know named Danni. My nose is cold, my fingers are numb, I have a splinter on my thumb. It's funny and soooooo relatable! I love the poem "Sick." I had to memorize it for my hearing for my school plays! It's just like me! I don't want to go to school, and I pretend I'm sick. I also remember how miserable I felt at school when I was really sick and my mother had to come and pick me up at home. She tries so hard to make her parents believe she's sick, not for once, realizing that her lie has long since been caught. The poem shows a little girl's determination for not going to school and her imagination, which she uses to create symptoms that would prove she was sick. She was sick, and she was sick. She was sick, and she was sick. She was sick, and she's sick, and she's sick, and she's sick, and she's sick. This poet is a genius. However, the moment she discovers that today is She is miraculously healed and then runs outside to play. One of the themes of the poem is childish innocence. childish. ,Av ri aireuq oEAn ue euq odadimintí odnes avatse ue euq me sotnemom evuoh sam ,ašAnairc are odnaug aloce a avama etnemlaer uE aloce a arap sodavel odnes marabaca sele ,etnemleivavrni ,sateop soa otiptser zid euq on oledom uem ©A ele e ,nietsrevlIS lehS etnemlatot orimda uE !oir;Alih ©A ameop etse e ,odašAargne siam o ©A nietsrevlIS lehS lil ue euq sameop so sodot ed amica sam ,nietsrevlIS lehS ed 3As oEAn ,sopmet so sodot ed otirovaf ameop uem o A IROHLEM O ©A ameop
