

I'm not a robot

Wa state driving permit test

From the music-filled venues of Seattle to the 120 state parks offering unparalleled outdoor recreation, the Evergreen State offers a wide range of events and opportunities for both residents and visitors alike. But before you can explore and discover all that this beautiful state has to offer, you will need to become a licensed driver. Prepare for the Washington Permit Test Whether you're looking to get your learner's permit or driver's license, all Washington state residents aged 15 years or older are required to pass the written driver's exam. Also known as the Washington permit test, this exam has a high failure rate of over 50%. However, if you prepare properly, you won't have to be another statistic. Start preparing now by taking advantage of the resources on this page. Become familiar with the official Washington State Driver's Handbook, and then test your knowledge with our Washington Permit Practice Tests. Real Test Simulation: Our Washington permit practice tests replicate the format and content of the actual written exam. Instant Feedback: Get immediate answers to each question to help you learn quickly and correct mistakes. Track Your Progress: Monitor your performance and focus on areas that need more practice. Unlimited Practice: Take the tests as many times as needed to build confidence before the real exam. Start Your WA Permit Practice Test Now Select a practice test to get started on your journey to becoming a licensed driver in Washington. Our free Washington DMV permit practice tests will help you prepare for the written exam and ensure your success. Permit Practice Tests (380 questions) Start your journey by learning the fundamentals of driving in Washington. Multiple choice questions designed to test your knowledge of the rules of the road. Introduction to common road signs, lane markings, speed limits, traffic lights, sharing the road, child restraint systems, hand signals, and seatbelt usage. Questions designed to test your knowledge of driving in poor weather conditions, phone usage, parking rules, lane changes, road signs, traffic signals, and blind spots. Features safe driving questions with an emphasis on defensive driving, distracted driving, emergency situations, railroad crossings, accidents, and road signs. This practice test will test your knowledge of various road signs and their meanings. Learn how to identify road signs by shape and color. Simulate test day with this practice test. Random questions generated from a huge database. No explanations. New questions with every attempt. Boost your knowledge with this massive practice test. Features hundreds of questions from every road rules category. Perfect for the day before the exam. Get the latest (2025) official WA DOL Handbook. You can apply for an instruction permit in Washington at 15 years old if you're enrolled in a driver education course. If you're not taking a driver ed course, you need to be at least 15½ years old. This age requirement applies to all first-time permit applicants, regardless of previous driving experience. To apply for a permit in Washington, you must bring: Proof of identity (birth certificate, passport, or other approved document) Proof of Washington residence (showing you live in the state) Social Security number (or a signed declaration if you don't have one) Payment for the application fee If you're applying for a REAL ID compliant license (Enhanced Driver License), additional documentation may be required. Check the Washington Department of Licensing (DOL) website for current accepted documents. Yes. If you're under 18, a parent or legal guardian must: Sign your permit application Accept financial responsibility for you Accompany you to the DOL office when you apply The application process in Washington is as follows: Pre-apply online at the Washington DOL website Visit a DOL office in person with your required documents Pass a vision screening Pay the application fee Take the knowledge test Have your photo taken for your permit If you're under 18, have a parent or guardian sign your application Washington allows you to start the application process online through the DOL website. However, you must visit a DOL office in person to complete the application, bring your documents, take your vision test, and get your photo taken. The knowledge test can be taken at a DOL office or an approved driver training school or testing location. The Washington DOL charges a fee for an instruction permit. This fee covers the cost of processing your application, taking your photo, and issuing your permit. Visit the Washington DOL website for current fee information. To get your permit in Washington, you must pass: A vision screening A knowledge test with multiple-choice questions about traffic laws, road signs, and safe driving practices The Washington permit knowledge test consists of 40 multiple-choice questions. You need to answer at least 32 questions correctly (80 percent) to pass. The Washington permit test covers: Traffic laws and regulations Road signs and signals Right-of-way rules Safe driving practices Rules for sharing the road with other users Penalties for violating traffic laws Alcohol and drug effects on driving The best ways to prepare for your Washington permit test: Study the Washington Driver Guide thoroughly, available on our website at this link Take free practice tests that simulate the actual permit test Review the test materials multiple times to make sure you understand the key concepts Consider enrolling in a driver education course If you fail the Washington permit test: You can retake it You may need to wait before retrying You'll need to pay an additional testing fee for each retake There's no limit to how many times you can take the test, but you'll need to pay the fee each time With a Washington instruction permit, you can: Practice driving with a licensed driver who has at least five years of licensed driving experience The supervising driver must sit in the front passenger seat Gain experience to prepare for your driving test and eventual driver's license When driving with a permit in Washington you: Must have a licensed driver with at least five years of licensed driving experience in the front passenger seat Cannot use any electronic devices while driving, even in hands-free mode, if you're under 18 Must ensure all occupants wear seat belts In Washington, the requirements depend on your age: If you are under 18: You must hold your instruction permit for at least 6 months before taking the driving test You must complete at least 50 hours of supervised driving practice, including 10 hours at night You must be at least 16 years old to get your license If you are 18 or older: There is no minimum holding period; practice enough to develop safe driving skills before taking your driving test Washington requires different driver education based on your age: If you are under 18: You must complete a driver education course before getting your intermediate license. You can get your permit at 15 if you're enrolled in a course (15½ if not). If you are 18 or older: No driver education is not required, although it's still recommended. In Washington, before you get your driver's license, the requirements depend on your age: If you are under 18, you must complete: A driver education course approved by the DOL At least 30 hours of classroom instruction 6 hours of behind-the-wheel driving instruction 50 hours of supervised driving practice (including 10 hours at night) If you are 18 or older: No formal driver education is required, though it's still beneficial. You can find Washington-approved driver education programs by: Visiting the Washington DOL website Checking your high school's offerings Making sure the program is approved by the DOL The Washington driving test checks: If you can safely operate the vehicle If you follow traffic laws and signs Basic maneuvers like turns, lane changes, and parking Awareness of other road users Good decision making in various traffic situations Before you start, you'll need to demonstrate various vehicle controls and safety features. You can schedule your driving test in Washington by: Contacting a DOL-approved driver training school or testing location Making an appointment through their scheduling system On the day of your driving test in Washington, bring: Your instruction permit A licensed driver who can drive you to the test A properly registered and insured vehicle Proof of insurance and vehicle registration Payment for the testing fee Common reasons for failing the Washington driving test include: Not checking blind spots before changing lanes Rolling through stop signs instead of coming to a complete stop Driving too fast or too slow for conditions Improper lane positioning or lane changes Not yielding to pedestrians or other vehicles Lack of steering control Poor awareness of surroundings To convert your learner's permit to a driver's license in Washington: If you are under 18: Hold your instruction permit for at least 6 months Complete an approved driver education course Complete 50 hours of supervised driving practice (including 10 hours at night) Be at least 16 years old Pass the driving test Pay the licensing fees If you are 18 or older: Practice with your permit Schedule and pass the driving test Pay the licensing fees Washington's graduated licensing program for minors has these stages: Instruction Permit: Must be at least 15 years old if enrolled in driver education (15½ if not). Valid for one year while you practice with a licensed driver who has at least five years of experience. Intermediate License: Must be at least 16 years old, have held your permit for at least 6 months, completed driver education, completed 50 hours of practice driving, and passed the driving test. Restrictions include limits on passengers and nighttime driving. Full License: Intermediate restrictions end when you turn 18 or after holding an intermediate license for 12 months without violations. Adults 18 and older can go directly from permit to full license after passing the driving test. As a new driver under 18 in Washington, your intermediate license will have these restrictions: For the first 6 months, you cannot have passengers under 20 years old who aren't part of your immediate family For the second 6 months, you cannot have more than three passengers under 20 years old who aren't part of your immediate family You cannot drive between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. unless accompanied by a licensed driver who is at least 25 years old (with exemptions for agricultural, employment, school, or medical emergencies) You cannot use wireless devices while driving—except to report an emergency These restrictions end when you turn 18. Washington does not recognize out-of-state permits for driving in Washington. If you are moving to Washington with an out-of-state permit: You will need to apply for a Washington permit If you're under 18, you'll need to satisfy Washington's requirements for getting an intermediate license Washington offers the following accommodations for applicants with disabilities: Audio versions of the driver guide Oral knowledge tests Sign language interpreters Extended testing time The ability to use special equipment in your own vehicle for the driving test Contact your local DOL office or testing location before your appointment to request accommodations Yes, Washington issues driver's licenses and permits to all residents, regardless of immigration status. Non-U.S. citizens can get a permit or license by providing: Proof of identity Proof of Washington residence Other required documents Visit the Washington DOL website for more information on documentation requirements for non-citizens. You can download a copy of the Washington Driver Guide here. Physical copies are also available at any DOL office or testing location. Yes! We offer free Washington-specific practice tests that mimic the actual permit test. Our practice tests are designed to help you study the material and get comfortable with the test format before your actual exam. For more information about the Washington permit process: Visit the Washington DOL website at dol.wa.gov Call the DOL at 360-092-3900 during business hours Visit your local DOL office For hearing impaired assistance, call 360-664-0116 If you lose your Washington permit: You can request a replacement through the DOL website You may need to visit a DOL office You may need to provide proof of your identity You will need to pay a replacement fee A parent or guardian who signed the application for a minor can cancel their teen's permit or license by submitting a written request to the Department of Licensing. The teen won't be able to get another license or permit until they turn 18 or have the consent of the parent or guardian who requested the cancellation. Skip to main content An official website of the Washington state government The .gov means it's official. A gov website belongs to an official government organization in the United States. The site is secure. The https:// ensures that you are connecting to the official website and that any information you provide is encrypted and transmitted securely. We're performing system maintenance on Sunday, May 18, 2025 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Our online services and transactions will experience brief outages during this time. We apologize for any inconvenience. The Washington DMV practise examinations have been updated for January 2025. It includes questions based on the Washington Driver Handbook's most significant traffic signals and legislation for 2025. Use actual questions that are very similar (often identical!) to the DMV driving permit test and driver's license exam to study for the DMV driving permit test and driver's license exam. On the practise exam, each question gets a tip and explanation to help you remember the concepts. The written component of the official Washington DMV test will feature questions about traffic rules, traffic signs, and driving statutes, as well as knowledge from the Driver Handbook. To obtain a passing grade, you must correctly answer 20 of the 25 questions. Use the practise exam provided by the Washington Department of Motor Vehicles to help you prepare for your instruction permit or driver's license. The DMV exam is available in several languages Using any kind of testing assistance will result in an automatic fail, and the DMV may take additional action against your driver's license, so stay away from it. 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 Grade This Section Go to next section To obtain a driver's license in Washington, you need to pass a knowledge and driving test, provide proof of identity, Social Security number, Washington residential address, and pay the required fee. If you're under 18, parental authorization is required. Non-US citizens must show proof of legal presence. Finally, if applicable, complete a driver's education course. In Washington, the cost to acquire a driver's license is $89 for a standard license and $113 for an enhanced driver's license. This includes the application fee and the license fee. However, fees may vary so it's recommended to check the official Washington Department of Licensing website for the most current information. In Washington State, the minimum age for obtaining a driver's license is 16. However, if you're under 18, you must first get an instruction permit and complete a driver education course. You also need to have at least 50 hours of driving experience, with at least 10 hours being at night, before applying for a license. When applying for a driver's license in Washington, you will need to provide proof of identity (birth certificate, passport), Social Security number (SSN card, W-2 form), and Washington residency (utility bill, bank statement). If you're under 18, you'll need parental authorization. Non-citizens must provide proof of legal presence. A full list is available on the Department of Licensing website. In Washington, you can schedule a driving test either online or by phone through a Department of Licensing (DOL) approved driver training and testing location. You'll need to provide your learner's permit number, full name, and date of birth. Make sure to schedule your test well in advance as slots can fill up quickly. Sure, to get a learner's permit in Washington: 1. Complete a driver education course if you're under 15 ½. 2. Visit a driver licensing office. 3. Provide proof of identity, Social Security number, and residence. 4. Pass the knowledge test. 5. Pay the required fee. 6. If you're under 18, a parent or guardian must sign the application. Remember, with a permit, you must always have an adult 21 years or older in the car with you. In Washington, if you're under 18, you are required to complete at least 50 hours of practice driving with a licensed adult, 10 of which must be at night, before you can take your driving test. This is to ensure that you have adequate experience in various driving conditions before getting your license. To prepare effectively for the driving test, familiarize yourself with the Washington Driver Guide. Practice driving in different situations like highways, night driving, and during bad weather. Understand road signs, signals, and markings. Practice parking, reversing, and three-point turns. Taking a driver's education course can also be beneficial. Remember, consistent practice and understanding of rules are key. Sure, here are common errors to avoid during your driving test: 1. Not checking mirrors and blind spots. 2. Incorrect signaling or forgetting to signal. 3. Lack of steering control. 4. Improper lane positioning and changing. 5. Not following traffic signs or signals. 6. Inadequate observation at intersections. 7. Speeding or driving too slowly. 8. Failing to yield the right of way where necessary. Remember, practice is key to overcoming these errors. Yes, in Washington, you're allowed to use your personal car for the driving test. However, make sure it is in good working order. The examiner will check the vehicle's safety features including seat belts, lights, and turn signals. Also, you need to provide proof of insurance and registration for the vehicle. If you don't pass the driving test in Washington, you'll need to wait at least one day before retaking it. There may be additional fees for retesting. If you fail four times, you must wait a year from the first test date to retake it. It's advised to practice and improve your skills before retesting. Yes, in Washington, newly licensed drivers under 18 have specific restrictions for the first year. They cannot drive between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. unless with a licensed driver over 25. For the first 6 months, they can't have passengers under 20, except for immediate family members. After six months, no more than three passengers under 20 are allowed unless accompanied by a licensed driver over 25. Yes, in Washington, you can pre-apply for your first Washington driver's license online. This will save you some time at the licensing office. However, you'll still need to visit a licensing office in person to complete the process, present necessary documents, pass the required tests, and have your photo taken. Driving with a learner's permit in other states depends on that state's specific laws. While your Washington learner's permit is valid within the state, other states may not recognize it. It's advisable to check with the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) in the state you plan to visit before you drive there with your learner's permit. In Washington state, a standard driver's license is valid for six years. After this period, you'll need to renew your license. If you're over 70 years old, you'll have to renew every 4 years. Note that enhanced driver's licenses (EDLs) also have a validity period of six years. Yes, in Washington State, you can renew your driver's license online if you meet certain eligibility requirements. These include having a license that's expiring within the next 12 months or that hasn't been expired for more than 6 months, and not needing to change your name or personal information. International students or foreign residents in Washington can obtain a driver's license by first getting an instruction permit. They'll need to pass a knowledge test, vision screening, and pay the required fee. After practicing driving, they can take a driving test to get their license. Proof of identity, residence, and legal presence in the U.S. is required. A driver's license allows you to drive independently at any time, while a learner's permit requires you to be accompanied by a licensed driver who's at least 21 years old. Additionally, permit holders often have restrictions on nighttime driving and the number of passengers they can carry. Obtaining a driver's license requires passing a driving test, which isn't required for a permit. Yes, in Washington, applicants for a driver's license must pass a vision screening. The minimum requirement is 20/40 in one or both eyes, with or without corrective lenses. If you cannot meet these standards, you may be referred to an eye specialist for examination and possible correction before a license can be issued. Yes, you can use a rental car for your driving test in Washington. However, you'll need to bring the rental agreement showing you're an authorized driver. Ensure the vehicle is in good working condition, with all lights and signals functioning properly. Remember, the examiner must be able to reach the car's brake pedal from the passenger seat. In Washington, if you fail the driving test, you must wait at least one day before reattempting. This allows time for additional practice or study to improve your driving skills. However, it's important to note that testing availability might also affect when you can retake the test. To take the DMV written test in Washington, you must provide proof of identity (like a passport or birth certificate), your Social Security number, proof of Washington state residency, and if applicable, proof of legal presence in the U.S. If you're under 18, a parent or guardian must also sign a consent form. Yes, the Washington State Department of Licensing offers the written test in multiple languages. Apart from English, the test is available in Spanish, Korean, Vietnamese, Russian, Japanese, and Chinese. However, it's advisable to check with your local DMV office for availability of your preferred language. If you don't pass the DMV written test in Washington, you can retake it. However, you must wait at least one day before your next attempt. You may also need to pay a retest fee. It's advisable to review the driver's manual and possibly take additional practice tests before retaking the exam. In Washington, if you fail the DMV written test, you must wait at least one day before you can retake it. Use this time to review the driver's manual and understand the areas where you need improvement. It's important to be fully prepared before your next attempt. Have a trial run at passing the adult permit test for Washington state residents, with the 2025 DOL practice test provided here. This DOL learners permit practice test covers road signs, traffic signals, rules of the road and pavement markings - just like the real driver's knowledge test in WA. Working through these permit test questions will show you exactly what taking the real permit test for adults will be like and give you an idea of where your driver's theory knowledge currently stands. You can also use this Washington state DOL practice test as an existing driver seeking to prepare for the license renewal knowledge test. You will need about ten to 15 minutes to work through this permit test over-18 quiz from start to finish. If you have that time free now, make yourself comfortable and click the 'start' button to begin. In Spokane, Seattle, Vancouver and elsewhere in Washington, the DOL written test for over-18s contains 40 multiple-choice and 'true or false' questions. To leave the DMV exam center with a driving permit, you will need to answer at least 32 questions on the exam paper correctly. Our WA DOL permit practice test uses the same pass requirement and number of questions as the real knowledge test, to give you a realistic taste of the challenge ahead. It is essential to remember that the real DOL permit test in Washington state is randomly generated and could address any information covered in the driver's manual. This means that while our DMV practice permit test WA quiz is realistic, the questions it contains may differ from those you are asked on the day of the DOL knowledge test. Your ability to earn a drivers license depends on you reading the entire Washington state driver's guide, while using our quiz to get familiar with realistic questions and answers. This Washington knowledge test practice quiz can take up to 15 minutes to complete as it is the same length as the real permit test. If you are already having trouble finding enough time to study - do not worry. Making this WA DOL permit test quiz a regular part of your learning plan will lessen the amount of time you need to spend reading the study guide. By using what you have learned about road rules and road signs to answer real permit test questions, you can judge when a certain chapter of the study guide needs more attention and when you are ready to move on to something else. The bottom line is that using our Washington state DOL practice tests will make your preparation for the knowledge test far more efficient. New drivers who are under 18 can also use this WA DOL license practice test to study for the general knowledge test. Equally speaking, adult learners are free to use any of the other permit practice tests provided here on ePermitTest.com. This is because - unlike the exams in other states - the Washington state adult permit test and teen permit test are essentially identical exams. The same topics are covered, using the same number of questions and the same pass requirement. So, when you are happy with your performance on this free Washington state DOL written test practice quiz, why not check out one of our other tests? The most challenging exam we offer is the teen and adult permit test simulator, which is built to mirror the format of the real WA permit test but does not contain any learner support features.