One of the only things punctuating my weeks has been writing these posts (the Wehr Wednesdays posts, in particular, prevent the days of the week from slipping towards the arbitrary). That being said, in the midst of uncontrollable events, there are still things within our power. And speaking of what we can do, here's six different ways to say to be able to or can in Arabic! // Lets take a look at each one in a bit more detail: / root: -- form X verb note: can be followed by either plus the present tense subjunctive () or a verbal noun () example: I can speak Arabic root: -- preposition + the noun note: followed by a noun or attached subject pronoun suffix, then by + or a example: he can change the situation root: -- adjective, form I active participle + the preposition note: followed by a or + example: the government is able to bring about stability root: -- preposition + the form IV verbal noun note: followed by a noun or attached subject pronoun suffix, then by + or a example: they can do that root: -- non-conjugated, form IV present tense verb note: can be followed by an attached subject pronoun suffix, then by + or a example: we can discuss (it) / root: -- form V verb + the preposition note: followed by a or + example: it can be developed I hope this list is useful!
