Chicago referencing 17th edition

Every scholarly discipline has a preferred format or style for referencing sources. The Chicago referencing style comes in two varieties: The notes and bibliography system is often used in the humanities disciplines such as literature, history and the arts. This referencing style requires footnotes in text when citing, and a bibliography at the end of your document listing all the works that you have cited and any other works you have consulted. The bibliography should be arranged alphabetically by author. The author-date system is often used in the sciences and social sciences. This referencing style requires the author and date in parenthesis when citing in the text, and a Reference List at the end of your document listing all the works that you have cited, arranged alphabetically by author. Please check your unit outline, or with your unit coordinator or tutor to find out which style you need to use for your assignments. This guide provides some common examples of each system. Use the tabs on the top of this guide to navigate to the examples dedicated to the notes and bibliography system and author-date system. For more examples and explanations, please refer to the online Chicago Manual of Style, 17th edition. The video below from the Laurier Library also offers an excellent overview of the Chicago Author-date and Notes and Bibliography systems in the Notes and Bibliography system, add a numbered footnote at the bottom of the page to cite another source in-text. Then, include the complete citation information in a bibliography at the end of your paper. General format: Notes 1. First and Last Name(s) of Authors, Title of the Source, and other publication details like the publisher, journal information, date, page numbers, etc. In the notes, elements of a reference are separate by a comma. A book publisher and/or year are included in parenthesis ( ). Shortened Notes 2. Ibid., page number(s). 3. Last Name, Shortened Title, page number(s). Use "Ibid.," which means "in the same place," when you are citing the same source immediately after another note. Use a shortened note the second time you cite the same source elsewhere. Bibliography Last Name, First Name and First Name Last Name. "Title of an Article." Title of the Source and other publication details like the publisher, journal information, date, page numbers, etc. In the bibliography at the end of your paper, elements of a reference are separated by a period. Include a comma , before the year. I'm citing a... News/Magazine Article Author(s) In the notes, list all authors as normal. In the bibliography, list the first author's last name first. "Title of the Article" Use headline capitalization and quotation marks. Title of the Newspaper or Magazine Use title capitalization and italicize. Date Include the Month Day, Year the article was published. URL Include a link to the article if available online. Notes 1. Amanda Petrusich, "Taylor Swift's Self-Scrutiny in 'Miss Americana,'" The New Yorker, February 4, 2020. . Bibliography Petrusich, Amanda. "Taylor Swift's Self-Scrutiny in 'Miss Americana.'" The New Yorker, February 4, 2020. . Citing a letter, photograph, text document, graphic material, or ephemera? Consult the Gerth Archives Chicago Citation Guide for Archival Materials. In Chicago style, the first time that an item is cited, provide a full citation for the item. For subsequent citations, use a shortened version of the footnote, which includes: Author's last name (for edited works, use the editor's last name, but omit the "ed." after the name) Shortened form of title (2-4 words; omit initial articles such as A, An, or The from the title) Page number (when available) Examples of full footnotes followed by short form footnotes: 1. John Bright, Jeremiah. The Anchor Bible (Garden City, NY: Doubleday, 1965), 60. 2. Danna Nolan Fewell and David M. Gunn, "Boaz, Pillar of Society: Measures of Worth in the Book of Ruth," Journal for the Study of the Old Testament 45 (1989): 46. 3. Arthur A. Just, ed., "Overview, Luke 3:1-20," in Luke, Ancient Christian Commentary (Downers Grove, IL: InterVarsity Press, 2001), 57. 4. Bright, Jeremiah. 60. 5. Fewell and Gunn, "Boaz, Pillar of Society," 46. 6. Just, "Overview, Luke 3:1-20." 57. The Chicago Manual of Style is a style guide published by the University of Chicago Press. Its recommendations for editorial practice, covering grammar, diction, spelling, document formatting, and citation, are widely used in publishing, particularly in the humanities. This guide focuses on the citation guidelines presented in the Manual, providing examples of citations for a wide variety of sources. It follows the 17th edition of the Manual, issued in 2017. You can navigate to the citation examples through the "Guide Contents" list on the left (on the right side of every other page), through the tabs across the top of the guide, or through these links: Books Articles Websites Audiovisual Media Other Sources Be sure to check out the general guidelines page as well for general rules on writing notes (footnotes & endnotes) and bibliography entries. The plagiarism page offers information to help you understand what plagiarism is and how to avoid it. Should you have a citation problem that this guide doesn't answer, it is best to consult the actual Manual for more information (see links below). Also, don't forget that you can ask one of our helpful librarians any citation or research-related question (see the library help section on the right). The Chicago Manual of Style Online This is the electronic version of the Manual. Page numbers are not included, so you must navigate by section numbers (e.g., 14.84). The Chicago Manual of Style (Print) This is the print version of the Manual, available behind the Information & Research Assistance Desk. For the online version, follow the link above. Note that The Chicago Manual of Style recognizes two similar but distinct citation styles: the Notes and Bibliography System and the Author-Date System. The examples in this guide follow the Notes and Bibliography System. For information on citing according to the Author-Date System, see section 15 of the Manual (pp. 891-921).
