Perhaps those who enjoyed Jason Sudeikis playing an American-College-Football-Coach-Turn-Turn-Soccer-Coach Weren't shocked by Ted Lasso's 20 nominations at Emmys. But the show of Apple TV surprise, which has just released its second season, is one of the best shows appointed this year. It's the favorite to win the exceptional comedy series award and some other statuettes - in a category in which it is competing against the critic Darlings Hackles and the flight attendant, as well as shows more established as black-ish. For give you more context, the third season of 30 Rock is the comedy with the most Emmy nominations to date; he obtained 22 in 2009. Ted Lasso is only two timid nominations of that number in his first season. Furthermore, 30 Rock is airing on the Network Channel NBC, and Ted Lasso is streaming on the relatively new subscription service Apple TV + which was launched in November 2019. It's not just that we needed a series of happiness people, like Ted Lasso, in a particularly tried time. It is also that streaming services dominate nominations. Netflix has accumulated 129 years. This year, Disney +, who also launched in November 2019, has 71. Apple TV + has 34. HBO Max has 36.
