Short for â €œApplication, â €œ applications allow you to do everything to listen to music to synchronize your phone to your car to play. With so many applications to choose from, however, it can be a bit daunting if you don't know how to download them. Fortunately, download applications can be fast, simple and easy regardless of the type of technology you are using. Continue reading to learn how and where to download applications. When you download a file online, either from a store or elsewhere, a hosted file on an online server is copied to your computer. If you've ever been online, either on a phone or computer, it is likely that you already downloaded files on many occasions. Applications are not different â €œ they are only specific types of files that you download from the Internet. Photo of courtesy: Barbour / Getty Images Applications are typically configured as executable files (.exe), although applications destined for Apple Apple They often come as APP (.APP) or DMG (.DMG) files. Sometimes (especially when it is thought for computers), an app is compressed into a zip file (.zip or .zipx) to save space. To do this, you may need another program, such as WinZip or 7-Zip, to open it, even if you may also be able to open it from the left or right-clicking if your device has arrived with the ability to open zip files. In many cases, however, downloading an app is as simple as clicking a button on the app page. As long as there is enough space on your device, the app will probably be ready for use once the download has been made. Android is an operating system used for phones, tablets and more. The odds are that if your phone is not an iPhone, it is probably an Android device â €œ The brands include Samsung, Huawei, LG, Motorola, ZTE and many more. To download apps for an Android device, you can visit the Android website or use the Google Play app. (It is often preinstalled on phones and tablets, so you may already have it.) Be aware that you may have probably requested access with your Google account or create one if you are not already. Complimentary photo: SOFA Images / Getty Images Open the Google Play store on your device and then search for the specific name of the app or any larger category that might interest you. Click on the app result to learn more. If the app is free, you should start downloading; if not, you will be required to pay it. In both cases, once you download the file, it is good to go. Microsoft Host Apps on its website, which you can access via any device with a web browser. You can use the site to download apps for tablets, computers, phones, Xbox consoles, virtual reality sets and more, so it is important to check system requirements on the page of each app to ensure that the app is compatible with your device.
