This was a transition league for 13-year-old and 14-year-old players designed to take graduates of Little League baseball from that diamond to the regulation size diamond. The growth ofPony League, primarily by word of mouth, was rapid, and by the end of the second season, 1952, the original six teams in Washington were joined by 505 others in 106 leagues around the country. A national tournament was conducted, and the firstPony LeagueWorld Series was held that year. This year, 10 teams of the finest U-14 playersfrom around the globeincluding teams from Puerto Rico, Chinese Taipei, Mexico and Spainwill compete on the field where it all began for the title.
